

Reading Log

As a class, my class decided that they wanted to read 250 pages per month to get their Pizza Hut Book It coupons. I told them to keep track of the number of pages they read per month by putting a sticky note on the fridge or maybe a note near their bed where they can write down their pages. At the 1st of each month, they can bring this log back to me, initialed by a parent, and earn their coupon. I had offered to do this electronically, but students requested paper logs. A copy will be on the blog if they lose this one.

October

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

January

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

November

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

February

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

December

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

March

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

Reading Log

As a class, my class decided that they wanted to read 250 pages per month to get their Pizza Hut Book It coupons. I told them to keep track of the number of pages they read per month by putting a sticky note on the fridge or maybe a note near their bed where they can write down their pages. At the 1st of each month, they can bring this log back to me, initialed by a parent, and earn their coupon. I had offered to do this electronically, but students requested paper logs. A copy will be on the blog if they lose this one.

October

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

January

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

November

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

February

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

December

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____

March

Number of pages read _____

Parent initials _____